PASTORAL NOTES

North of Rome is the hill-top town of Orvieto, famous for its wine. You can take a funicular railway up the hillside, or a bus, to catch a glimpse of the spectacular view of the local countryside. The Cathedral is also spectacular, full of carvings of Bible stories on the outside, and wonderful wall-paintings on the inside. It is in the Gothic style, similar to our own ancient cathedrals, giving some idea of how they also would have been decorated in the Middle Ages. Every Corpus Christi, there is a very colourful procession with the Blessed Sacrament, where the locals dress up in medieval garb – knights in armour on horseback, the different professional guilds in their bright, differently coloured uniforms and with their banners, and then the Blessed Sacrament. The little medieval town is packed for the occasion. The whole town is united around the Blessed Sacrament. At the time of the Reformation, young men escaped from England to the Continent, to train as priests, in order to return to celebrate the Mass in secret. The Eucharist is the point where, with all our different lives, we the Church are bound together by the Lord.
