PASTORAL NOTES

The Year of St Paul comes to an end this Sunday, arranged to mark the anniversary of the apostle's birth, best calculated as 8 or 9 AD. He is buried under the high altar of the basilica named after him, outside the ancient walls of Rome. This basilica stood for roughly 1500 years (320-1820 AD) – until, by accident, it was burnt down. The cardinals in Rome were so shocked, they kept it secret from a dying Pope. The basilica was rebuilt with the help of the faithful around the world, and just as it had been, giving us a perfect example of an ancient Roman basilica. The tomb of St Paul is still there, under the high altar, unscathed by the fire.
