LETTER FOR THE FORTH SUNDAY OF LENT 2024

m To}$  my dear sisters and brothers in Christ,

The Gospel today, and next week, is not from the Gospel of Mark. Instead, we listen to the Gospel of John. Jesus has called his first disciples. He has invited them to re-imagine faith as trust in him. They have witnessed the first sign, the changing of water into wine at the wedding feast of Cana. And then that somewhat disturbing event, the cleansing of the Temple that we reflected upon last week.

Now we meet another character. Not one of the disciples as such, but one described as 'a leader of the Jews'. He is intrigued. He wants to know more. At the same time, Nicodemus is cautious. He wants to protect his reputation. Nicodemus has come to meet with Jesus by night. This great intellect is struggling to understand what Jesus is talking about. 'How can anyone be born after having grown old?' He is not prepared, at this point, to come out into the open about his interest in Jesus. And this blinds him to so many truths of God's Kingdom.

In today's Gospel, we join the conversation between Jesus and Nicodemus towards the end. Nicodemus seems to be out of his depth. Our Lord is speaking about baptism. And the root of the word "baptism" is to be immersed into something. Through our baptism we are immersed into the life of the Blessed Trinity. We are born into the relationship that Jesus has with his heavenly Father. When Jesus is lifted up on the Cross, and sheds his last drop of blood in love for us, the gates of heaven are thrown open to us. And we receive all this when we are baptised.

Perhaps we are inclined to imagine that the gift we receive in baptism, must be carefully carried throughout our lives, so that we may be able to hand it back at the end. This is not how Jesus sees things. He does speak of the one servant who buries his gift in this manner. But he also speaks of others, servants who believe that what they have received, are gifts destined to grow.

We too hear the words Jesus spoke to Nicodemus. They are life-giving words which speak of God's love for our world. They witness to the eternal life, first offered us in baptism, and brought to new growth through our everyday lives of faith. The ancient philosophers thought that philosophy brought people out of darkness into light.

The Gospel of Nicodemus shows us how challenging our minds can be at times, when it comes to receiving the Gospel of life. During these days of Lent, we are invited to walk humbly with the Lord. Someone once said, faith is not about knowing something new, it's a new way of knowing. Through faith, we can see the world with different eyes. We recognise a world loved by God. And it is heart-breaking to witness all the pain and hurt around us. We need to find ways to speak the language of God's Kingdom to our world today. And that language is love.

Sincerely,

Bishop David Oakley

Bishop of Northampton

THE SABBATH CONTROVERSY

John's gospel picks up this week on a theme from Mark's. The Lord healed a man on the Sabbath with the command "Pick up your mat and walk" (5:8). Of course, this was interpreted an order to do work, antithetical to the spirit of the day as a time of rest. While scholars debated whether the words of Jesus actually broke a judgment derived from the Law, they clearly saw Jesus connected an "unnecessary" task with the Sabbath as a means to heal (5:11). Later, when the Lord encountered the man in the Temple, His remark implicitly undercut the leaders' objection to the cure; if the Sabbath was the day of Yahweh, then it was THE day of divine revelation through divine activity. His remark also implied the true nature of the Sabbath; the way to fulfil the day of rest (indeed, the entire Law) was repentance ("Sin no more..."), otherwise all is for naught ("...so that nothing worse happens to you"). We should therefore carefully consider how we use Sundays ourselves as the moral of the passage is clear: Jesus heals us so we can live a life of repentance. In this way, we honour God's Day and His Law.

In John 5:1-16, Jesus also healed a paralytic on the Sabbath. To the leaders who objected to His activity on the holy day, He had an answer, "My Father is still working (on the Sabbath), so I am working too." In one sense, divine activity never ceased on the "seventh day," for, without the will of God, creation would cease. So, as the Father acted, even on the Sabbath, the Son acted in the healing and redemption of humanity.

The leaders correctly concluded that Jesus equated himself with His Father and protested. He answered their objection with comments about His relationship with His Father in three ways:

First, He depended upon the Father for His direction and power. Not only did He do what the Father did (5:19), the Father implicitly worked through Him, fulfilling His will (5:30).

Secondly, because the Father revealed His affection for and His will to His Son, He empowered His Son to raise the dead to new life (5:21b, 26). Within that ability came the power to judge. In other words, resurrection itself was a sign of judgment. God would call all to life (5:28); those who heard His voice and did good would live, those who did not would be condemned (5:29). (Notice, Jesus equated hearing the call of the Father with doing good; they were one in the same.)

Third, those who honoured the Son would be raised; their resurrection would honour the Father (5:23a, 24). Those who denied the Son and His power did not honour the Father and, implicitly, did not look forward to the Final Judgment (5:23b, 30).

Sometimes, wading through John's gospel can be difficult, but if we unpack the readings this week we can see simple outlines. Jesus and the Father are one in power and purpose. As the Father creates, the Son saves. The Father will create anew when He calls all from the tombs; those who hear His call (by believing in the Son) will have eternal life. Indeed, He calls us now and, through His Son, gives us that everlasting life even in our present state.

LET US OPEN ST EDWARD'S DURING THE WEEK FOR PRIVATE PRAYER

Historically St Edward's Church used to be open all day during the week. However, due to some serious incidents and for parishioners' safety, we felt it prudent to keep the church closed outside of Mass times. I would like to slowly reopen the church for longer periods for private prayer, but I will need the help of parishioners to do so. Initially I would like to have the church open on a Wednesday from after Mass until 1 pm. This would require two parishioners at a time to be present in the church during that period at all times to keep watch. If you are willing to help, please contact me directly and I will make a rota and announce in the newsletter when we can start. If this goes well, we can then expand the days and times when our church is open for private prayer. - Fr Gregory

MOTHERING SUNDAY

We would like to thank God for our Mothers. We wish them good health. We appreciate all that they do for us. In our prayers we remember those mothers, who are no longer with us. May God reward their love with everlasting life in heaven. May Our Lady, the best of all mothers intercede for us all.

A FUNDRAISING INITIATIVE

The money raised by our parish often goes on major expenditure, which is not noticeable, for instance this year we will be having to pay for a new garage door, five windows in the parish hall and 33 windows in the parish house. Although essential, these do not necessarily deepen our faith.

Last year we bought a beautiful statue of the risen Lord. This year on Palm Sunday it would be good if we could cover the cost of the new edition of lectionaries (books with Mass readings), which every parish has to purchase. We will need lectionaries for all four of our churches. I would be grateful for even a small donation, when you take a palm cross on Palm Sunday. Thank you!

STUDENT CROSS

Every year St Edward's hosts a pilgrimage of students, who make their way to Walsingham to be there on Good Friday. Once again, this year they will be sleeping over in the parish hall on Friday 22nd March. Usually, the Union of Catholic Mothers coordinate their stay, providing them with an evening meal and a continental breakfast on Saturday before they make their way after morning Mass.

This year, I would like to ask our parishioners from all our communities to offer food for the students. If you are willing to prepare a hot dish for Friday evening, I would be grateful. If you could provide something towards the continental breakfast, that would also be appreciated. You are invited to come and chat to the students and stay for the evening meal, and then come again for morning Mass and breakfast.

If you are willing to help, please contact Fr Gregory with your name and phone number and he will pass it on to the UCM.
